BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Thomas G. Cousins

William K. Hohlstein

Herman J. Russell

John W. Wilcox, Jr.

JOHN WILCOX

John Wilcox is intelligent and articulate. He is a perceptive businessman and has an extensive legal background. John Wilcox is also friendly, communicative and interested in what's going on.

All these traits qualify Wilcox to be a solid, innovative leader. As president of The Omni Group, he is just that. Wilcox oversees the operations of no less than three corporations - the Atlanta Hawks, the Atlanta Flames and the Atlanta Coliseum, Inc., the company that manages the Omni building.

Since he was elected to his post in July of 1973, Wilcox has earned the confidence and admiration of his employees, co-workers and his fellow Board of Governor members in both the National Basketball Assn. and the National Hockey League.

Wilcox, 44, was graduated from the Lumpkin Law School of the University of Georgia in 1951 and spent two years as a trial attorney for the U. S. Department of Justice and then two more as assistant attorney general for the state of Georgia before entering private practice in 1955.

As a senior partner in the respected Atlanta law firm of Wilson, Wilcox and Wilson for almost two decades, Wilcox specialized in employee and labor relations. He was legal counsel, a stockholder and a member of The Omni Board of Directors before assuming his present duties.

A native of LaGrange, Ga., Wilcox is married to the former Susan Courts Hull of Atlanta. They have four children.

COTTON FITZSIMMONS

Head Coach and
Director of Player Personnel

---

Cotton Fitzsimmons, a dynamic personality with a keen basketball mind, is in his third year as coach of the Atlanta Hawks.

The enthusiastic Fitzsimmons joined the Hawks in May of 1972 after successful seasons at Moberly (Mo.) Junior College, Kansas State and the Phoenix Suns.

He continued his winning ways at Atlanta by guiding the Hawks to a 46-36 record in 1972-73, but then fell to 35-47 last season, the first negative standard of his coaching career. He didn't like last year's record and intends to change it.

Fitzsimmons entered the coaching profession at Moberly, where during a nine-year tenure he captured the junior college national championship in 1966 and 1967.

Cotton then switched to Kansas State of the Big Eight. Picked to finish sixth in preseason polls, the Wildcats surprised everyone by winning the conference title and compiling an overall 20-8 record. That showing earned Fitzsimmons Coach-of-the-Year honors.

During his 11 seasons as a college head coach Fitzsimmons won 258 games and lost just 78 for an outstanding .768 winning percentage. But, when the Phoenix Suns hired him as head coach before the 1970-71 campaign, many observers doubted he could make the transition from college to the pros.

Again he proved otherwise as he took a Suns team that had won 39 games the previous year and directed it to its first winning season ever — 48-34 in the rugged Midwest Division. He improved that by a game the following year and then moved to Atlanta.

Fitzsimmons was an all-America at Hannibal (Mo.) LaGrange Junior College and received his Bachelor's and Master's degrees from Midwestern University in Wichita Falls, Texas.

Cotton and his wife, Nancee, live in the Dunwoody section of Atlanta. Their son, Gary, is a student at Southern Illinois University.

GENE TORMOHLN

Assistant Coach

Gene Tormohlen's basketball job is actually two seasons in one.

From the time of the Atlanta Hawks' training camp in September until the colleges start playing the beginning of December, Tormohlen serves as assistant coach to Cotton Fitzsimmons.

From December through March Gene sees countless collegiate games, involving big and small schools in major cities and out-of-the-way places scouting talent that will be available in the upcoming spring draft.

Tormohlen has the background for both aspects of his position. He played five years for the Hawks in the NBA after spending one season with the Kansas City team of the American Basketball League. Gene's aggressive style earned him the nickname, "Bumper." Prior to his pro career he played at Tennessee.

Gene and his wife, the former Julie Stafford, have two children, Gina and Tommy.

JOE O'TOOLE

Trainer

Joe O'Toole, recognized as one of the best in pro sports, is in his sixth season as the Atlanta Hawks' trainer.

O'Toole not only oversees the Hawks' physical needs, but also serves as the team's traveling secretary on the road.

In his second year as chairman of the National Basketball Trainers Assn., Joe came to the Hawks from an assistant trainer's job at the University of Wisconsin. He received his Bachelor's Degree from Cortland (N.Y.) State, a physical therapist certificate from the Mayo Clinic and his Master's from Indiana University.

O'Toole, a native of Waverly, N.Y., is married to the former Rosemary Little. They have three children, Andy, Molly and Maura.

SKIP CARAY

Voice of the Hawks

Skip Caray has been the Voice of the Hawks since the team has been in Atlanta; 1974-75 is the seventh season for their association.

Recognized as one of the best broadcasters in the league, Caray is known for his easy style and tell-it-like-it-is approach. He was named Georgia Broadcaster-of-the-Year for the second time in 1973.

Caray began his broadcasting career at the University of Missouri. He attended Mizzou on a football scholarship, but a knee injury cut short his active athletic career.

An honor graduate of the Missouri School of Journalism, Caray had done St. Louis University basketball, Missouri football and Atlanta Cracker baseball before joining the Hawks.

Caray is a popular after-dinner speaker and also helps the Hawks in various public relations capacities.

The New Orleans Jazz, the NBA's latest expansion franchise, has lined up an impressive array of coaches and player personnel in an effort to achieve basketball maturity quickly.

Head coach Scotty Robertson compiled a 165-86 record in 10 years at Louisiana Tech before joining the Jazz. His teams won three conference championships and developed into a national power.

Lending coaching assistance to Robertson are two famous names from NBA player annals — Elgin Baylor and Sam Jones. Baylor became a legend in his own time with the Lakers, while Jones established an outstanding defensive reputation on 10 World Championship Celtics clubs.

The Jazz roster is headed by Pistol Pete Maravich, but he should have a lot of help from his teammates. It should be an interesting beginning for the Jazz.
